What

Shall I Buy
for a

Present?

HIS question is ever present with us, whether it be for a Bridal or Birthday, an Anniversary, Christmas, or New Year's Gift, and its solution is frequently quite difficult, particularly if more than a passing interest is felt in the Lady, Gentleman, or Child whom it is designed to compliment.

The lists in this book are carefully made, care being taken not to overvalue the articles in description. All are thoroughly standard goods, suitable for presents in any family, and offered at exceptionally low prices as will stand the test we ask you to make.

A careful study of the articles and prices will enable you to determine satisfactorily what will be an appropriate and desirable present.

As these goods are bought to use, a closer inspection must reveal substantial mechanical advantages, such as a double tin lining, hand-brazed spouts, non-heating handles, and a lamp that accomplishes what is claimed for it.

Suggestion for : : : : Christmas Buying

FIRST make out your list (pp. 63, 64) of the people to whom you desire to make presents, noting against each name, if practicable, about the amount you wish to pay. Then turn to the respective lists of articles, and mark against such as seem to you desirable the initials of the persons for whom they would be appropriate. It now remains only to compare and select. Or, ask the members of your family, or near friends, to check off on one of the books some of the things they would like.

*If begun early, Christmas buying is a pleasure.
If begun too late—a torture.*
